The Envelope, Please Coming Up! Election Awards

by Randy Alfred

We're pleased to present the "Uppies," 1979 election awards for outstanding public service and dissidence. The winners have just been announced by the Joint Awards Committee of the Jaguar Democratic Club ("United We Kneel") and the Eleanor Roosevelt Lesbian Democratic Club.

Category I - Media

- "Wow, I Could Have Had A V-8" Award to Dianne Feinstein, who repeatedly was photographed slapping her hand to her head, from "I had not had an opportunity to be in a riot" (July 24) to "We'll go on, I've been there before" (November election night).

- Best New Composite Word Award to the Chronicle's Larry Liebert, who described Quentin Kopp as Feinstein's "vanguished opponent."

- Creative Journalism Award to Ray P. Comeau of B.A.R., for his interview with District 5 candidate Steve Perkins. At the outset, Comeau noted, "It would be easy to dismiss Steve Perkins as a paranoid crank," and then proceeded to detail the reasons why we should do precisely that.

Category II - Shenanigans

- Button, Button, Who's Got the Button Award to Milton Marks and Carol Ruth Silver for their prolonged and intricate negotiations and non-negotiations over who would run for what and with whom.

- "I, Claudius" Award to supervisory aspirant Terence Hallinan, who persistently confused District 5 with the Roman Senate. (The ballots are printed in three languages, but Latin isn't one of them.)

On The Move! . . . That would be our own SF Pioneers, commanding the court at several home games this month. Check calendar listings for January 6, 9, 21 & 22.

Pacific Center New Year's

"I wanted to do something other than go to the bars on New Year's Eve," says Karen Sims, community fundraiser for Berkeley's Pacific Center for Human Growth.

"There wasn't a place where women could be together in a warm and sisterly fashion that night," she continues. "So with the help of Nubian Women, Zulema, and Pacific Center, this year we'll have our own New Year's Dance and I'd like to make it an annual event."

The festivities start at 9 pm and will continue 'til 3 am with champagne from 11:30 to 12:30 and a Midnight Buffet included in the sliding scale donation of $5-$7.

Childcare is available and may be reserved by calling 841-6224 in advance. The event is also wheelchair accessible.

Entertainment will be provided by Casselbury-Dupree and friends (special surprise guests)! Live DJ Helen Keller, will take requests and spin the hits of the last ten years for your dancin' pleasure.

The Pacific Center for Human Growth is located at 2712 Telegraph Ave. in Berkeley. Call 548-8283 for more information.

Don't miss this great New Year's Eve Dance just for women.

THE FUTURE IS COMING! THE FUTURE IS COMING!

How many Chicken Littles have you heard recently? There sure are a lot of them: We're gonna run out of oil. We gonna blow ourselves up. We gonna inflate ourselves silly. And those are just some of the negative scenarios. On the positive side: We're going to live in space. We're going to live longer. We're going to unravel secrets. The future, fortunately, doesn't arrive all at once. It arrives a bit and piece at a time. Some, if not most, of the future is already here among us, or some of us. We think one part of the positive future already here is the personal computer. Someday, everybody will have one, but for right now, those who do will have a slightly better edge on coping with whatever may come along.

We use a computer to tally up the scores of all the Chicken Littles running around (and there are thousands).

Sacramento Bound: Capitol march to focus On job rights, violence

"You're fired!" "Sorry, that position has been filled." "We'll keep you in mind if we have an opening."

Statements many of us are familiar with — and a moving force behind a January 13 March on Sacramento, pressing for legislation to insure job rights for gays, and protesting mounting violence against lesbians and gay men.

The principle focus of the Sunday march — and for a lobbying effort planned for the next day — is Assembly Bill One, a proposed law introduced by Assemblyman Art Agnos, which would add sexual orientation to the categories of persons covered by the state's Fair Employment Practices Act. AB1 would prohibit most private employers from firing or refusing to hire people, just because they're gay.

Currently, gay people enjoy no such protection under California state law.

Organizers of this month's march, sponsored by California Human Rights Advocates, believe passage of AB1 would be a significant advance in gay people's struggle for equal rights. Should the State Assembly fail to act on the bill by month's end, the legislation will die for another year.

"It's a great way for people who couldn't go to Washington to get their licks in locally," says March co-chair Cleve Jones of San Francisco. Jones co-chairs the statewide March on Sacramento organization with Karen Peters, president of the California chapter of the National Organization for Women.

According to Jones, the March committee is both co-sexual and multi-racial, with offices in Los Angeles, Sacramento, and SF. Local groups backing the Sacramento effort range from Gays Under 21 to the Golden Gate Business Association.

"This is something people can do easily and still make a statement," asserts Paula Lichtenberg of the local committee. She adds: "They should make a commitment for themselves, if not for others."

Planners Optimistic

Organizers are confident the March will have legislative impact, maintaining that the largest recorded demonstration in Sacramento only drew 15,000 people. "If up to a quarter million people turn out for the annual Gay Freedom Day Parade in San Francisco," says Lichtenberg, "we can certainly top 15,000 in Sacramento."

In addition to the need for job protection, the march will protest increasing violence against lesbians and gays — whether physical, mental or emotional.

The following Monday, January 14, has been designated Lesbian and Gay Lobbying Day — a day to sound out legislators on gay rights and AB1.

The January 13 March & rally won't limit itself to political speeches, according to planners. Lesbian comic Robin Tyler is one among many gay artists who'll perform at the conclusion of the long haul.

Groups, organizations and businesses can obtain application forms and pay the ten dollar registration fee (which can be waived for needy groups), by calling or writing the nearest March office.

Interested? Reserve a space on a chartered bus by calling 885-2510, before January 5. Car caravans also are in the planning stages; and housing information is said to be available through all three march offices.

Committee offices also need volunteers and funding (checks payable to "March on Sacramento"). See accompanying box.

• Silver Threads & Golden Needles Award to the 26 gay and lesbian leaders who met with Mayor Feinstein in her office in April, but wouldn't drown our sorrows in the warmth of her wine.

• Dr. Atkins Award to campaign consultants Jim Rivaldo and Dick Pabich, who put Harry Britt on a strict, no-Rolo's diet. No, it was not the Pritikin diet.

• "Say Goodnight, Gracie" Award to Leonard Matlovich.

• Silence Is Golden Award to District 5 contender Kay Pachtner, for finding enough difference between Kopp and Feinstein to endorse Kopp, but not enough difference between Hallinan and Britt to endorse either of them.

• At Least He Was In the Right State Award to Jerry Brown, for endorsing Kopp at the Los Angeles airport.

• "The Fault, Dear Brutus" Award to John Baridis (Virgo), Nancy Walker (Cancer), and Doris Ward (Aquarius) for knocking off Ron Pelosi, Lee Dolson, and Bob Gonzales—the Board of Supervisors' entire Scorpio caucus.

• Chutzpah Award to David Scott, maverick Gentile realtor, for providing an alternative and forcing a runoff between the other two candidates for mayor. Contrary to most published reports, many non-Gentiles voted for Scott.

• Horatio Alger "If At First You Don't Succeed" Award to Sheriff Gene Brown, who captured 26.9% of the vote in a seven-candidate field in November, and only 26.2% in December's one-to-one runoff.

• Best Performance on Half a Bottle of Cough Syrup: Dianne Feinstein at the November 20 meeting of the Harvey Milk Gay Democratic Club. (She got the endorsement.)

• Approaching the Limits of Good Taste (from the Outside) Award to Carol Ruth Silver, for auctioning off her roommate at a fundraiser.

Category III - Campaign Literature

• "Someday, My Son/Daughter, All This Will Be Yours" Award to those candidates whose literature featured photos of them overlooking their districts from hilltops: Kay Pachtner, Dennis Peron, Terence Hallinan and Nancy Walker.

• Alfred Hitchcock "Every Detail Has Meaning" Award to Kevin Wadsworth, for a "Neighborhoods mean little things" photo of himself relaxing on a bench at the East Portal subway stop, beneath the graffiti, "FAG KILLING STATION."

• Thousands of Loyal Fans Award to District 7 candidate Enola Maxwell, whose cardboard and tongue-depressor fans kept the pots cool at many a meeting.

• "It Worked for Her, Why Not Let Him Try It?" Award: A Coro Foundation Fellowship to Joel Ventresca, whose District 5 literature looked and read like chapter drafts for an unpublished civics textbook.

• Laurel-and-Hardy Exquisite Timing Award to Kay Pachtner, for distributing Sally Gearhart's letter criticizing gay male sexual mores at the Castro Street Fair.

• Graphics Most Expressive of the Candidate Award to Quentin Kopp: clean, but stodgy.

• Also to Quentin Kopp: The Dianne Arbus Truth-in-Photography Award, for his Feinstein-the-landlord flyer (depicting residents of the wrong hotel), and for his pro-Kopp brochure, with a photo of Quentin in the wrong City Hall office.

• Thomas Nast Political Cartoon Award to Gary Kell for his portrayal of Kopp and Feinstein as Tweedledum and Tweedledee (or was it the other way around?) on David Scott's literature.

• Best Single Brochure Award to Art Silverman of Full Circle Media who produced a winner for disoriented marijuana dealer Dennis Peron: "Mayor Feinstein and the Chamber of Commerce want to know . . . Is San Francisco becoming 'Kook City?'" The piece juxtaposed photos of Dennis grinning and Dianne looking wrecked and bewildered. A masterpiece, likewise, Peron's Monopoly board (also by Silverman).

Special Mention

• Larousse Gastronomique Award to Carol Ruth Silver, for her inspired characterizations of political situations in terms of food. On November 27, 1978, she said an extra cup of coffee may have saved her from being killed along with Harvey Milk. In 1979, she said her offer to withdraw from the DA's race and run for mayor (if Freitas would help finance her campaign) was a joke told while wiping eggs off her son's face. She later called opponent Arlo Smith "mashed potatoes." Coffee, eggs and mashed potatoes will be served at Silver's next fundraising brunch.
